English Biography

Arina Aristova is an author, jurist, and translator originally from St. Petersburg, Russia. Her literary body of work, which includes plays, short stories, and poetry, has been published in various journals across both Russia and the United States. Her novel, The Charter of AI, earned wide acclaim from readers for its captivating vision of the development of artificial intelligence and its profound impact on our society.

In 2024, she co-authored From Gen 2 to Gen AI with Sophie Olivas, which quickly became a bestseller and an essential guide for students and young adults navigating the transformations of the AI era. Her latest work, From Gen 2 to Gen AI 2.0, serves as a survival guide for a new reality where AI already influences hiring decisions, transforms professions, and redefines useful skills.

This new book analyzes the shift that occurred when AI became unavoidable. It explains why traditional degrees no longer guarantee the security they once promised and why adaptability has become the most precious skill. Rather than a technical manual or a motivational speech, it is a lucid reflection on work and learning in a world transforming in real time.
